High School and University Scholarship Form

While high school is open and free in Costa Rica, uniforms, books, and transportation costs are prohibitive for many potential students. As a result, higher education is often unattainable precisely in an area where lack of education is a major cause of poverty and environmental degradation. The SCLC firmly believes that educational opportunities are key for sustainable development in Sarapiquí.

The SCLC's high school scholarship program has made a vital difference for dozens of local students over the past six years, some whom have now graduated and are attending university or working in ecotourism. With your support, the SCLC can continue providing an opportunity for academically promising, but financially limited students to attend high school.

Contribute $325 for six years to support a student through high school, $500 to sponsor a student's university education, or make a single donation to the scholarship fund to help support the program.

Thank you for your support of the Sarapiquí Conservation Learning Center!
